VINE TIME

MICHAEL MOORE / Staff Photographer | Posted: Friday, April 13, 2012 1:15 pm

The annual pruning of the grapevines is under way at the Walpole Mountain View Winery. It takes almost 20 part-time workers three to four weeks to prune the dead growth, leaving the renewal growth to ensure that high-quality grapes are grown. Some of this year's pruners working the vineyard last Wednesday morning are, from left, Charlie Bush of South Acworth, Madeline Van Koughnett, Bob Grenier and Adam Beckta, all of Walpole.

TALKBACK

What do you think of "stand your ground" laws?

Featured

The shooting of Trayvon Martin in Florida has set off a firestorm of protests and activism. One of the chief targets of critics is the so-called "stand your ground" law, which allows a person who feels threatened to shoot another person in self defense. New Hampshire recently passed a similar law...

Letters To The Editor

Submitted by Donald Cox, Walpole, Health law is a drastic improvement

The United States is the only country on the United Nations list of "developed nations" that does not have some system of universal health care and experts from all sides believe that the United States health care system is a disaster and is in crisis.
